

AUSTRIANS OPPOSE ITALIAN ADVANCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, June 22.—Italian troops today renewed with great vigor their assaults on all the Austrian positions. The storm that for the last few days had interfered with military operations had cleared away.

A drastic Regent's decree issued early today threatens grave penalties for those who publicly circulate any reports about military operations other than those contained in the official statements. Punishment also is threatened for those who furnish information about military defenses.

The war office has been apprised that the Italian troops now are encountering stronger and better organized resistance from the Austrians.

The Austrian defenses are numerous and excellently prepared. At some points they have cut into the rock and British artillery is well concealed.

General Frugones, in charge of the Italian forces in Austria has sent out a general warning to Austrians notifying them that all spies will be court-martialed and "snipers" shot down.

When the Italians took Montefiore, according to reports here, they captured two super-dreadnoughts and one cruiser under construction.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

TOP—LAUNCHING PARTY. BOTTOM—ARIZONA SLIDING DOWN WAYS.

The launching of the world's largest battleship, the Arizona, was a grand affair. The ship, which will mount a battery of 12 fourteen inch guns, besides smaller rifles and torpedo tubes, was launched from the ways of the U. S. navy yard, when the latest addition to the U. S. navy was launched on June 21. Below is the Arizona sliding down the ways and into the East River.

Amid the cheers of 75,000 people the giant bulk of the Arizona, the latest battleship in Uncle Sam's navy, slid down the ways and into the waters of the East River. The Arizona, when put into commission will be the largest and most powerful fighting craft in the world. She will even surpass the Queen Elizabeth, the fighting giant of the British navy. She will mount a battery of 12 fourteen inch guns, besides smaller rifles and torpedo tubes.

RUSSIANS WILL ABANDON LEMBERG

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Petrograd, June 22.—Although nothing official has been given out, the general opinion in Petrograd today is that Lemberg will soon be abandoned to the Teutonic allies who have been sending large forces against the Russians in order to drive them from the Galician capital.

Semi-official reports received here state that the Russians are yielding to their Teutonic foes inch by inch, that the roar of the artillery is now heard in Lemberg itself and that thousands of the inhabitants are leaving the city.

In official circles it is stated that Lemberg has only been used as a base of supplies for the Russian forces, and that its evacuation would not lose any military advantage to the Russians because they have not strongly fortified the city.

While the war office admits that the Austro-German offensive continues in the region of Rawa Ruska, it is stated that the Austrians are not making any progress in other sections of Galicia and Bukowina. Stubborn fighting, however, continues in these regions. South of Polotsk the Russians checked the German attacks, capturing hundreds of prisoners.

FALL OF LEMBERG SOON EXPECTED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Vienna, June 22.—Lemberg was practically surrounded by the Austro-German allies and the fall of the stronghold held by the Russians was imminent, according to an Austrian official statement issued today. The Teuton troops were within 15 miles of the city. The official statement follows.

"The pursuing allied troops have advanced to Zolkiew about eighteen miles north of Lemberg, and south of Lemberg to the Skemierek Rivulet. The Russian troops on this line are everywhere being attacked.

Near Tskolawow and Zydzawow the Russians are making a stand on the Dniester.

"The troops of the army of Gen. Pflanzer have repulsed strong Russian attacks with the heaviest losses to the Russians southwest of Plotok Zioly, near Zale Saczky and on the Bessarabian frontier with heavy losses. Situation northeast otherwise unchanged."

AUSTRIANS REPULSED CLAIM OF ITALIANS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, June 22.—Repeated night attacks by the Austrians to recapture positions taken by the Italians on the left bank of the Isonzo river were repulsed, according to an official statement issued by the war office today.

In the Monte Nero zone of operations the Italians continue to gain, despite the bad weather and the heavy resistance made by the Austrians.

The official statement follows: "On the Trivol and Trent frontiers there has been nothing of importance excepting a reconnaissance through the San Pellegrino valley where we occupied Punta Tassa.

"In the upper Cordevo valley we discovered at various points, strong, cemented Austrian trenches, carefully concealed.

"On the Carnic frontier the continued fire upon the fortress of Malborghetto was somewhat hindered by foggy weather.

"On the night of June 21 fresh Austrian attacks upon Freikopel zone the operations begun on June 19 and June 20 were carried to the most successful conclusions, notwithstanding the difficulties of the ground and the bad weather. The enemy, strongly supported by artillery, made heavy resistance.

"Along the Isonzo river front frequent night alarms from the enemy's trenches, accompanied by rifle and artillery fire have been noticed. We did not respond to those attacks. The Austrians have attempted to recapture our positions on the left bank of the Isonzo river by repeated night attacks, seeking to drive us back to the right bank but they were always repulsed."

PROTEST MADE BY MAYOR CANFIELD

A hearing was held before the Public Service Commission of the Second district at Albany today on the application of the New York Central Railroad Company for the abrogation of the order under which the company is required to operate a train from Albany at least as far as Ravens when the Continental Limited is reported thirty or more minutes late at Ravens.

A vigorous protest by Mayor Canfield against abrogation of the Public Service Commission's former order was embodied in a letter which Mayor Canfield sent to the commission to be used at the hearing.

Mayor Canfield's letter was as follows: June 21st, 1915. Public Service Commission, Second District, Albany, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—I respectfully object to the granting of the petition of the New York Central Railroad Company for the abrogation of the order of the commission made in 1908 that the train now starting from Albany at 12:01 o'clock p. m. be operated at least as far as Newburgh on each occasion when the Continental Limited train on the West Shore is reported 20 minutes or more late in Ravens, upon the following grounds:

First.—The order is a fair, reasonable, sound and wise exercise of the power conferred upon your commission.

Second.—The continuation of the order will not be prejudicial or detrimental to the interest of the railroad company.

Third.—The operation of the order is advantageous and beneficial to the public at large.

Fourth.—The existence of life in this order has had and has the admirable and salutary effect of teaching the railroad that time is valuable to several hundred passengers.

Fifth.—This order urges and impels the railroad to make every possible effort to hug the time-table on all occasions.

Sixth.—The order has furnished a substitute and a remedy for the disserviceable and deplorable train condition that existed prior thereto, whereby hundreds of passengers, including myself, were at times compelled to wait at Ravens for nearly two hours.

Seventh.—The order does no harm to the railroad, and renders good service to the railroad patrons.

Eighth.—The order has been instrumental in developing a better connecting service, as it was not achieved before the issuance of the order.

Ninth.—The order is not oppressive or burdensome to the railroad, and the annulment of the order would mean and bring loss, damage and inconvenience to the traveling public.

Tenth.—The knowledge of the existence of this order by all railroads of the state must necessarily strengthen the train service throughout the state, as it is an indication as to what the commission would do under similar circumstances.

Respectfully,
PALMER CANFIELD, JR., Mayor of City of Kingston.

The couple were married at Pine Bush on November 1, 1905, by the Rev. W. R. Reed. Early in 1913 defendant left plaintiff and lived with Margaret Vice, as complaint charges, at Brooklyn, and she is now known as his wife in Brooklyn. The plaintiff charges that in 1913 the defendant was in the habit of visiting a house of ill repute alleged to be conducted by one "Mother" Moore of Dwaarskill. ## WEDDING WARE FOR THE JUNE BRIDE Silverware, which is becoming more and more the most popular wedding gift, must have a standard of merit to be appreciated by the bride. If it is Gorham's you know and she knows that it is genuine. Gifts of silver and gold have the intrinsic value and permanence of a precious stone and should not be nondescript in origin.

Our stock is large and varied, and our prices are as low as those of the Gorham Company.

St. John's Church Notes.

There will be no service on Thursday morning, St. John the Baptist's Day, at St. John's Episcopal Church, as was announced at morning service at the church on Sunday last.

On Saturday at two o'clock there will be a sale of home made cake, etc., at St. John's parish house for the benefit of the Parish Aid Society. The leaders will be for this month, Mrs. Orren Kennedy and Mrs. Walcott Babcock. All of the ladies of the parish are cordially invited to aid in this work, by baking a cake and sending the same to the sale, as these St. John's cake sales are so popular that always there is a shortage of their delicious home made cakes with which to meet the demand of their customers.

The St. John's Sunday school picnic will take place on Saturday, July 10, and will be at Orange Lake. All members of the Sunday school, who attend the session of the school next Sunday will then receive their tickets for this enjoyable outing.

The dead are: Wm. F. James, battalion chief and John Hillman, hoseman, truck No. 7. Several of the injured are not expected to recover. The fire loss was $125,000.

Strawberry Festival.

The young ladies of the Queen Esther Society of the St. James M. E. Church will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival on the grounds about the church and next to the parsonage, on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week from 4 to 10 o'clock. In addition to the strawberries and ice cream and cake, there will be home made candy for sale.

Thrift.

A Pennsylvania girl has won the prize that the American Society for Thrift recently offered for the best definition of thrift, says the Youth's Companion. "Thrift," she wrote, "is management of your affairs in such a manner that the value of your possessions is constantly being increased." The definition may seem trite, but the truth it expresses needs constant emphasis. Saving money on one thing is waste it on another is not thrift.

Woman's World

Queen of Montenegro Most Successful Mother-in-law in Europe.

QUEEN MILENA.

Queen Milena of Montenegro, though somewhat overshadowed by the aggressive personality of King Nicholas, enjoys a unique distinction, that of being mother-in-law to more royalty than any other woman in Europe.

"Sire, I have noticed that Montenegro has no exports," once remarked a distinguished foreign traveler to King Nicholas.

"Monsieur, you forget my daughters," wittily retorted the reigning monarch. The retort was justified, for queen little Montenegro has supplied two monarchs and three other important royal personages with wives.

The class motto is "Mea Facultas Nihil Deligens" and the class flower the purple iris.

The number of brides that Montenegro has supplied to the courts of Europe is altogether disproportionate to the size and importance of the little country. Montenegro has an area of 3,500 square miles and a population of a quarter of a million. The capital, Cetinje, is a village with a population of 3,000. The princely palace in which so many distinguished royal brides were born and brought up is a modest structure, in which a moderately successful American tradesman would never condescend to dwell.

But in these modest surroundings the princesses of Montenegro grew up to be splendid specimens of womanhood. As children they enjoyed the greatest liberty and escaped the restraints of court etiquette, which are the curse of most royal boys and girls. In the severe winters which are experienced in the country of the black hills, as Montenegro is called in the Balkans, the princesses were encouraged to harden their constitutions by sleighing, running in snowshoes, skating and indulging in other cold weather sports and pastimes. At the warmer seasons of the year they made long excursions into the wooded and mountainous interior and paid frequent visits to the prince's villa on the shores of the Adriatic sea. By the time they were in their teens they could ride a bareback horse, drive a four-in-hand, hunt and shoot, swim and sail or row a boat to perfection.

While thus enjoying childhood to the full, the royal girls were educated by French and German tutors and governesses, who polished off the roughness which might otherwise have become apparent in their characters. Prince Nicholas allowed each of his daughters to run wild in Montenegro until sixteen years of age, after which the princesses were sent to Vienna and Paris to gain a knowledge of the western world, with its totally different manners and customs. After attaining her seventeenth birthday each princess spent six months of the year abroad and six months in Montenegro, and this plan proved to be an effective conclusion to an excellent scheme of education. The Montenegrin princesses developed from tomboy girls into women of unusual grace and beauty, of exceptional personal distinction and of remarkable talent in many directions.

A Suffrage Exhibit.

One of the exhibits which are attracting much attention in the suffrage booth at the Panama-Pacific fair is made of tiny imported dolls representing all the voting and nonvoting countries of the world. The nonvoting dolls stand behind a wall, "symbolic of the conservatism, inertia and self interest which keeps women from the ballot," the Empire State campaign commission announces. The costume of each country is carefully presented, except that subjects from the unfree countries are dressed in mourning.

Another effective exhibit is a framed copy of the record of the Sixty-third congress, giving each representative's vote on the woman suffrage amendment.

When She Talked.

Patience—I understand his wife is a great conversationalist.
Patience—Yes, she is. You just ought to hear her play bridge whist—Yonkers Statesman.

Wrong Place.

While little Dorothy was visiting, her hostess' dog came running up and stopped before her panting. Seeing his tongue out, Dorothy said: "I'm not a doctor, doggie."—Boston Transcript.

TESTING A BETROTHED

It Did Not Turn Out Exactly as Expected.

By JOHN Y. LARNED

"What notion?"

"About testing Mildred. I don't like to do it, but the temptation is becoming irresistible. I shall make the test as soon as we get home."

"You mean when you get where you will find a man to play the part of a titled aristocrat?"

"Yes."

When the party reached their camping ground and had settled themselves in their temporary canvas home, Fred Winston, who had made up the party, announced that they must have a guide and he was going out to find one. Setting out, he soon came upon a party of hunters who were about to leave the woods and asked if they had a guide who wished another job when they released him.

"There's a chance for you, Hawkesworth," said one of the party.

A man about thirty years old asked some questions about what was required and when informed said that he wouldn't mind taking the job. Having gathered his belongings, he bade goodby to his friends and started to camp with Winston. Hawkesworth was an Englishman, and Winston, noting his British accent conceived the idea of using him to make the test he had proposed to his brother upon Miss Huntington.

"How would you like," he said to the guide, "to play the part of a nobleman?"

Hawkesworth looked up at him, but made no reply. Winston gradually unfolded his scheme. Hawkesworth listened to what he said without comment till he had concluded, then said that he would not pass himself off for anything more than what he was, but he had no objection to Winston declaring that he was a prince of the blood if he liked.

"That's all I wish," said the latter.

When they reached camp Winston introduced the guide in this wise: "Permit me to present my friend Hawkesworth of London. He has the mania for hunting common among English bloods and is in the Maine woods for moose. He has consented at my invitation to honor us by joining our party, and since he knows the best hunting grounds, will pilot us. We won't need any other guide."

Hawkesworth was made welcome, and when Fred Winston intimated that he was the Earl of Bingleton there was quite a flutter in the camp, especially among the women.

"He doesn't look like an earl at all," said one of the girls. "He's very ordinary."

"Why should an earl look different from any other man?" said his introducer. "Besides, how can style be expected from one who wears a flannel shirt? You can't judge a man by his clothes. They say that the worst dressed assembly in the world is the British House of Lords. They don't stand on their appearance. It's the fact that they are peers."

Whether Alec Winston suspected that his brother had introduced Hawkesworth to make the test he had proposed, whether he believed the latter to be an earl, he kept his eye on his fiancée. All the girls of the party who regarded Hawkesworth with curiosity were desirous to know how they should address an earl, and were told that they might call him what they liked so long as they didn't call him anything above Tom Hawkesworth.

Hawkesworth, judged by certain attributes, was just the man a woman would admire. There was a natural air of dominating force about him. He was a silent man. It is the man who is always expressing opinions who does not get credit for depth, even if he has it. He who never talks is supposed to be always thinking. Great generals have usually been reticent men.

When the party was made up it was supposed that the women would remain in camp while the men went out to hunt, but they had not been in the woods long before it was proposed that the girls go out with the men to shoot moose. They were in camp costume, which favored the plan, and there were plenty of guns. So the four girls went with the men on a morning on a hunting tramp, and it was understood that each girl should be assigned a protector. Fred Winston made the assignments and deputed Hawkesworth to be the guardian of Miss Huntington. On reaching a certain spring where numerous tracks indicated that animals came for water the party scattered, the several couples going in different directions for game, it being agreed that they should meet later at the spot.

As Hawkesworth and Miss Huntington took their departure the lady informed the guide that she wished to shoot a moose and for him to give way to her. He responded that there was no reason why she should not do so provided a moose gave them an opportunity. In time, hearing a breaking of branches, he notified his charge to be ready to fire, and a little later when they stepped out into the open space a large buck moose was seen feeding a few hundred yards from them.

"Wait till he exposes his flank," said the guide.

He had scarcely spoken the words before the animal turned.

"Fire," said the guide.

Miss Huntington fired, but instead of hitting the moose behind the forehead as she intended an irritating wound in a nonvital part. The animal, enraged, charged upon them.

Even a skillful hunter may wince at seeing a wild animal coming down on him to crush him. Miss Huntington's legs gave way under her, and she dropped on her knees. Hawkesworth dropped beside her, but on one knee instead of two, and leveled his rifle at the moose. Miss Huntington had no doubt that she would be trampled by the infuriated animal. There was a crack beside her, and the moose dropped, plunging forward at the same time till his nose was within a dozen feet of them.

Then Miss Huntington completed her collapse by falling in a faint. When she came to herself she was in Hawkesworth's arms and he was looking down into her face with an expression that filled her with rapture.

If she was to be won by an exhibition of the masterfulness of man there could be nothing more effective than what had taken place. When the two joined the others nothing was said about the adventure except that they had bagged a fine specimen of the inhabitants of the woods. But it was not long before Fred Winston told his brother that Mildred Huntington had fallen before the test to which she had been subjected. It was no news to Alec. He had seen immediately after the hunting party that he had been supplanted. But he did not know that his betrothed's heart had been taken away from him by love instead of her desire for a title.

The party did not long hang together. Alec Winston and his fiancée were evidently at odds, and this threw a damper on the whole party. As soon as a sufficiency of game had been shot the tents were struck. When they took their departure Hawkesworth remained behind.

On the way Miss Huntington made it known to the other girls that her engagement to Alec Winston was broken. When asked the cause she replied that he had offered to release her and she had accepted the offer. Of course the announcement was made to the men by Alec, who sympathized with him, though the girls were not disposed to blame Mildred. In their hearts they felt that an earl was worth more than a commoner any day, and they were not sure but that they would have acted likewise under similar circumstances. It was supposed that the Earl of Bingleton was poverty stricken, but Miss Huntington was rich. The match, if she succeeded in capturing him, would be a good one.

That Miss Huntington had captured the prize became evident during the winter from the fact that cards were issued announcing the marriage of Mildred Huntington and Thomas Lawrence Hawkesworth. Then every one opened his eyes. What did it mean that the groom was announced on his wedding cards without his title? Surely a nobleman would not remain in-ognito.

Gradually the truth leaked out. Hawkesworth was no earl at all, and long before he proposed to Miss Huntington he had disabused her mind of this false impression. He was the son of an English clergyman. Having a taste for woods and waters, he had spent much of his time in American forests, being enabled to do so by a small inheritance that gave him $500 a year.

And so it was that a desire to test his fiancée led her to Alec Winston. He never quite forgave his brother for leading him to make the test, but Fred says:

"What's the difference, Alec? If she did not leave you for a title she left you for a man she liked better."

French Military Law.

Every Frenchman not declared unfit for military service must on reaching the age of twenty serve three years in the active army, eleven years in the reserve of the active army (two trainings of one month each, six years in the territorial army (one training of two weeks) and six years in the reserve of the territorial army. Part of the conscripts, drawn by lot and the number of which is fixed every year by the minister of war, pass into the reserve after one year of active service, if they can read and write, or after two years if illiterate. Those who are not able to bear arms or belong to the active army for a period less than three years have to pay a military tax of 6 francs ($1.15).

He Lived as a Woman.

John, alias Elizabeth Russell, died at Streatham in April, 1872, at the age of 104. Early in life Russell associated himself with the gypsies and went wandering over the continent. Returning to England, dressed as a woman, he set up at Streatham as a female doctor and fortune teller, and among other things was "an excellent sempstress and celebrated for making a good shirt." Among his acquaintances was Dr. Johnson, who, finding the supposed woman shrewd and sensible, was fond of conversing with "her." Russell died suddenly, when his sex was discovered, "to the extreme amusement of the neighborhood."—London Spectator.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 22, 1915.

Ulster county listens with close attention daily to the reports of the condition of her most celebrated son, John Burroughs, whose recent illness at his home at West Park has aroused anxiety throughout the world. It is gratifying to learn that his indisposition is not serious. To the celebrated writer-naturalist the garden spots of the earth have been opened and there is no community which would not gladly have welcomed him as a neighbor. From among all the garden spots he selected the banks of the Hudson in Ulster county. That we may continue for many years to have him as our neighbor and that Ulster long may continue to remain his home and hearthstone is the earnest wish of everyone in Ulster. That is one subject on which everyone agrees.

Kingston has taken a forward step in notifying individuals and contractors that sidewalk, curb and gutter grades must conform to the established grades of the city, which will be furnished by the city engineer upon request. There are streets in Kingston where half a dozen different grades in sidewalks, curbs and gutters can be encountered in half that number of blocks. This condition is distressing alike to the owner whose grade is correct and to the owner who has had his street masonry laid without regard to any grades except his own. Pedestrians also are apt to speak harshly when they meet a changed grade and the results sometimes are disastrous to other things than temper. All these things go to help make a better Kingston. They do not directly bring new industries here but they make Kingston more attractive to visitors who are likely to bring industries. They also have a peaceful effect upon our own citizens whose manner of thought and speech is affected thereby so that in a tranquil and cheerful frame of mind they adopt as their civic attitude a measure of boasting which can be backed by actual facts. The grades mentioned are only a small item in our daily life but every little improvement helps wonderfully in making up a grand total of civic advantages, benefits and happiness.

It cannot be anything but gratifying to the organizers of the Ulster County Farm Bureau and to the men who as private subscribers or taxpayers have aided in the support of its work to know that the results accomplished have attracted attention elsewhere. Albany county has awakened to the necessity of organized effort intelligently directed for the conservation and improvement of its farming. Farming is the basic industry on which the prosperity of any country depends. The time has passed when the farmer outside of his own community was considered the legitimate target for the shafts of cheap wits. That such a condition did exist was due principally to the fact that industrial growth with the resultant growth of cities was so rapid that the industrial and money-making centers looked with commiseration upon people whose lives were essentially different from their own. The fact that men continued to live in spite of the wealth-grabbing propensities which naturally assert themselves in mankind led commiseration to develop into amazement which took the form at first of gentle ridicule and was followed by coarse jesting. The changed conditions which find the farmer occupying a high plane financially, socially, politically and industrially is due less to a higher regard for his calling than to a realization that the farmer is beginning to apply science to his work so as to get more money for it. The farmer is using the same methods in his calling which brought success to his business brother.

President Hadley of Yale advises his University's graduates to practice self-control not only as individuals but as part of a national system of government. The need of weighing our words and controlling our feelings is particularly great, he says, in a commonwealth like ours, where we act not as individuals but as members of a body politic. One man states a hasty conclusion as a fact, another so accepts it and makes it the ground for passionate expressions of hate or resentment, while still other men, who have not looked into the facts at all are caught in this common flame of resentment and hurried into precipitate action which does harm to themselves and injustice to others. President Hadley states no new fact but he does call attention to a fact largely overlooked in American communities during the past ten or twelve years. During the last two decades we have been living at a more rapid pace than ever before in our national history. About ten years ago the demagogue began to take advantage of people's preoccupation with their own affairs and to attract to himself attention to which he never is entitled. Rash statements were accepted as facts and they kept growing like a snowball until the accumulations of falsehood finally grew too cumbersome to move and in their stationary position became prey to the sunlight of truth. Even then it required expensive Congressional and state legislative investigations to determine that the missing snowball had been dissipated and was not being held for ransom by Socialists or was being capitalized by magnates. Some such investigations are still running but the pendulum of public opinion seems to be swinging back to a conservative estimate of all affairs and to a judgment based on fact instead of fiction.

A REMARKABLE WOMAN.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

If success is measured by the accumulation of dollars and the possession of unusual ability to overcome obstacles, then certainly it has come in generous degree to a woman in Tulsa, Okla. "Aunt Jane" Applebee is 85 years old; her business career did not start until she had turned the half century corner, and today she is a wealthy woman. That would not mean so much if her start had looked propitious when the struggle began, but there was nothing to augur prosperity except a grim resolution to make the most of such opportunities as came her way.

They call her the "Cattle Queen," but her title to that designation grew from mighty humble beginnings. By adoption, she is a member of the Osage Indian tribe in Oklahoma, and when her husband died, leaving her with a large family and practically nothing in the way of funds, she had no education and no training for anything but the most ordinary work.

At the wash tub and with her needle she earned sufficient money to invest in a cow, and that constituted her start. The cattleman gave her motherless calves, and in order to lose none, she rode over the range for days at a time, securing recruits wherever she could. And one must think a bit to gain a faint idea of what the cattle industry must mean to a woman who has no one to bear the burden of the hard work; and perhaps only a cattleman can understand what that intrepid woman went through on her way to a fortune.

In a few years she began to be heard of in the business world because of unflinching honesty and pluck. And when the first paltry little showing began to grow into a herd and the herd multiplied to represent a couple of thousand head of cattle, those who dealt with her or watched her progress commented upon the business ability that was coming to light.

When her purchases grew into vast bunches and her shipments went to the great centers she became known as a Cattle Queen—and perhaps the rest came easier.

At 75 she dropped the cattle business and moved to Tulsa where she purchased land that has since multiplied in value many, many times. It is now the site of her home and she is said to care for the array of flowers and shrubs planted by herself with the same energy that characterized her work in a field where motherless calves challenged her interest and where strenuousness of the extremest variety was an everyday thing.

During all the years of her active career luxuries were barred out, but it is significant of a remarkable make-up that she has a goodly collection of business and law books with which she is familiar and which have formed the basis of much of her confidence.

Do you ever wonder just what it is that makes it possible for some to win success of the financial variety, with nothing in sight upon which to build hopes "Aunt Jane" herself, as she is familiarly called, is quoted as saying, "When I hear people say that they can't do anything because they have had no education and never had a chance, I wonder what they would have done in my place."

It makes some of us feel a bit strange to reflect that undoubtedly better "chances" than hers are drifting about every day; and while we are wondering why fortune fails to knock at the door, the opportunities drift away, and we wonder again.

She simply made hers, and began pretty late in life, at that. Some of us, much as we would like to, find it impossible to persuade ourselves that there is within us any latent force that would make us swim even if we were thrown in the water—unless first shown the way. And it is that which makes for greater admiration of a woman who does not balk at hardship and who wins her way to the front not because of education but in spite of its lack.

Just one more thought comes to mind. Had her husband lived to carry the burden, she probably never would have heard from her business capabilities never have been tried.

Kingston, June 21, 1915. To The Editor of The Freeman, My Dear Sir:—

A four page illustrated description of some of Kingston's beautiful gardens, are printed in the July issue of Mouse and Garden. As it occurred to me that many of your readers would be interested in a mention of it in The Freeman, I asked the editor, Mr. Richardson Wright, to send you a copy of his magazine containing this story. He writes me he has directed that it be forwarded to you.

The four gardens of which I wrote belong to the officers of the Ulster Garden Club. The walled in garden is Mrs. John Schoonmaker's; the two terraced gardens, held together by a broad and long waving ribbon of flowers, belonging to Mrs. George Washburn and her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Hutton, and the perennial garden is Mrs. Williams Carter's. Each of these gardens was planned and is looked after, personally by its owner.

Hoping that you will find that you can make the mention I suggest, I remain,

Very truly yours,

ULSTER'S CLASS DAY EXERCISES

Monday evening the thirty-sixth and last graduating class of Ulster Academy held its class day exercises in the new high school auditorium and the event marked the passing of the old academy as a high school from which the first class graduated in 1879. This, the last class to graduate, have a right to feel confident that they have upheld the traditions of the old school in scholarship for seventeen of the members graduate with honor and four with honorable mention. The officers who have led them safely through the perils that beset a senior class are: Bernard Culliton, president; Catherine Barrett, vice president; Beulah Kittle, secretary, and Charles Sibley, treasurer. The class motto is "No Victory Without Labor," and the class flower is the daisy.

The exercises that evening were opened with the singing of a song of welcome, the words of which were written by Miss Helen Connelly, a member of the class, and was followed by the address of the president of the class, Miss Ethel Salzmann gave the ever popular history of the class from its entry to the historic walls of old Ulster up to the present time and clearly showed that the class of 1915 was "the finest class" in the history of the school.

Miss Ethel Tongue delivered the class poem which was entitled "Retrospection," and traced the history of the class from green freshmen to their present dignity, while Miss Freda Krom, the class censor, in a witty manner reminded the members of the class of their faults and failings and the good natured class drew much applause and laughter.

Miss Marion Dumond, the class essayist, delivered a graceful essay on the mission of the musician and the class elocutionist, Miss Edna Silverstein, gave a monologue, "Keeping a Seat" that was exceptionally good. Ross Osterhout, the class orator, delivered a fine oration, "The Scholar in the Republic," that was well delivered.

The class prophecy as delivered by Miss Catherine Barrett traced the future of the members of the class who were widely scattered over the world and who all had made their mark in the hall of fame whether as vaudeville stars, or housewives or workers in the cause of woman's suffrage.

It fell to the lot of Miss Laura Gildersleeve to present each member of the class with a suitable token drawn from a huge basket and presented with a witty and good natured dig at the individual foibles of its members. The gifts ranged from toy balloons to large paper hearts and was one of the most popular events of the evening.

The advice to the juniors written by Arthur Hallinan and read by Miss Lena Merrifield was in a more serious vein than usual and urged the juniors to lay aside all petty feelings of strife and to unite with the juniors of Kingston Academy in upholding the dignity of the new high school, which they will enter in September, and to work together for the glory of the new high. The response was made by Wilson LeFevre, president of the U. A. Junior class, who pledged its members to follow the advice of the seniors.

Mr. Culliton, the class president, who presided, said that it was usual at this time to present the academy with a suitable remembrance, but as this was the last class from U. A. the members had thought best to secure some suitable gift of statuary to be presented to the new high school. With this in view the class had raised a purse to which many of the alumni had desired to add too.

Superintendent M. J. Michael in accepting the gift said that he was proud of the fine spirit that prevailed among the members of the class and that he understood that the contemplated gift to be made was a heroic size copy of the famous statue the Venus De Milo, and on behalf of the members of the board of education he thanked the class for the purse. This statuary when received will be placed in the corridor of the new building.

The exercises of the evening were brought to a close with singing the class song, "Farewell to Ulster" words and music by Miss Katherine Smith, a member of the class.

The last class day exercises of the graduates of Ulster Academy reflected great credit on the ability of its members and will long be remembered by those present.

Who Knows William Welch?

Charles A. Herpich of No. 224 East Nineteenth Street, New York City, has written to Mayor Coughlin requesting information regarding the heirs, if any, of William G. Welch, who was a native of Kingston. Mr. Welch was born in Kingston about 1823. During the years 1860, 1861, 1862 and up to June 1863, he was assistant commissary general of the state of New York, and it is believed that during those years he was located in New York City. On August 26, 1863, he was drafted from Greene township, Chenango county, N. Y., and was discharged September 11, 1863, upon furnishing a substitute. If there are any heirs of Mr. Welch still in Kingston or elsewhere, they may learn of something of interest by communicating with Mr. Herpich. Mr. Welch's middle name may have been Graham, but this is purely guess-work.

Youthful Thieves Active.

Boys in the lower section of the city have been busy for some time past tearing up the rubber tiling laid in the vestibule of the Cordis building on the Strand formerly occupied by Block's Bazar and selling the rubber. The damage caused to the tiling is such that the entire vestibule will have to be relaid. Some of the rubber tiling has been recovered and the police are working on the case and expect to shortly round up the young thieves who have probably sold the rubber to acquire the necessary cash to keep them in cigarettes.

ALLIES REPULSED IN BELGIUM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 22.—Austro-German forces are now standing before the forts defending Lemberg upon the north. The German war office in a statement today officially announced that the Russians in Galicia have retreated east of Zolkiewa, which is about 15 miles north of Lemberg. It is officially announced that the battles northwest of Lemberg are continuing.

Zolkiewa lies on the Lemberg-Rawa-Russka railway line and upon the Swina river.

Attacks by the Franco-Belgian forces against three hamlets northwest of Dixmude, Belgium, were repulsed. The French have renewed their attacks against the Germans near Neuville St. Vaast, north of Arras.

Upon the heights of the Meuse the Germans took 139 French prisoners in counter attacks.

In the Vosges mountains the Germans have shifted their positions during the night from the western to the eastern bank of the Fecht river. The movement of the Germans was not opposed by the French.

German aviators have attacked Courmelles. Aviators of the allies have attacked Bruz and Ostend without doing much damage.

The Vanishing Road.

We are all treading the vanishing road of a song in the air, the vanishing road of the spring flowers and the winter snows, the vanishing road of the winds and the streams, the vanishing road of beloved faces. But in this great company of vanishing things we feel that there is a reassuring comradeship. We feel that we are the units in a vast ever moving army, the vanguard of which is in eternity. The road still stretches ahead of us. For a little while yet we shall experience all the zest and bustle of marching feet. The swift running seasons, like couriers bound for the front, shall still find us on the road, and shower on us in passing their blossoms and their snows. For a while the murmur of the running stream of time shall be our fellow wayfarer—till, at last, up there against the sky line, we, too, turn and wave our hands, and know for ourselves where the road wends as it goes to meet the stars. And others will stand as we today and watch us as we disappear, and wonder how it seemed to us to turn that radiant corner and vanish with the rest along the vanishing road.—From "Vanishing Roads," by Richard Le Gallienne.

Siberian Signal Men.

It is probable that nowhere save in Siberia are convicts employed in any service pertaining to the operation of railways. In that place of exile there are many "good conduct" men, who spend their lives in little huts along the line of railway, always a vast apart, whose duty it is to signal with green flags that the road is clear. At night they signal with a green lamp.

If the traveler stands between the railway cars at midnight he may tick off the green lights as the train spins along. Away down the black avenue will appear a tiny green speck. As the cars proceed this speck will become larger and larger, and finally the figure of a man holding up the lamp is distinguishable in the darkness. And there are thousands of these men along the line. A signal started today in Moscow runs for eleven days, until it is broken on the banks of Lake Baikal, beyond Irkutsk.—Minnneapolis Journal.

ONE REASON FOR THE GERMAN ADVANCE IN GALICIA.

The thoroughness with which the German army is equipped is one of the main reasons for their success in their recent drive on the Russian front in Galicia. Most of the roads in this section have been rendered almost impassable by the heavy rains and the thousands of troops passing over them. The Russian destroyed most of the railways in their retreat, but the Germans, by means of the huge power tractors, one of which is here shown, were able to bring up their supplies and ammunition with comparative ease. It will be noticed that the wheels of the tractor are of a broad gauge, enabling it to go over bad roads without sinking too deeply into the mire. A train of nine or ten heavily laden wagons can be hauled with the tractor.

American Express Co. Survey Shows Manila Rivaling Asiatic Cities.
President George C. Taylor, of the American Express Company, gave out the statement today that, in view of the active trend of American capital and American merchandise toward the Orient, the company has decided to add to its 'round the world chain of offices by establishing new branches at Manila, P. I., and Hong Kong, China. Following immediately upon the semi-official visit to this country of the Chinese Industrial Commission for the purpose of filling the gap left in Chinese commerce by the upheaval of the European exporting interests, the announcement is particularly significant.
"If ever the United States is to take its proper place as an exporting nation to China and southern Asia," said Mr. Taylor, "the best time to do it is when the door is wide open and when the outside world is seeking for what we have to offer. This is emphatically so in the case of establishing new connections with eastern peoples who as our merchants have discovered, cling conservatively to the pathways of trade to which they have become accustomed.
"We are the only nation at present with a free hand to whom they can look for permanent commercial ties. Already American interests have succeeded in making Manila a commercial center of considerable magnitude. R. A. Foulks, of our European service, whom the American Express Company sent to the Orient to make a first hand survey of the situation, reports to us that Manila as the headquarters for American interests has made remarkable progress and is becoming a factor to be reckoned with as the trade centers of the far east. We believe we are safe in asserting that it will be a matter of only a few years when Manila will be among the leaders as a clearing house for American trade. Our investigations were thorough, including not only the problems of transportation but the vital issue of exchange facilities, banking conditions and credits. Hitherto American exporters have been carrying on their business largely through European banks with Asiatic branches. The dominant exchange has been pound sterling. In establishing its new branch houses at these two centers, which are only two days' sail apart, it is the purpose of the American Express Company not only to perform such financial services as it is now doing at its European offices, but to act as an intermediary between United States manufacturers and Asiatic importers.
"American trade is doubly welcomed at this time throughout all of southern Asia. China is hungry for American capital and with the establishment of a permanent form of Republican government we are convinced that China will soon prove as rich and profitable a field for American exporters as it has proved in the past for Europe. It is also our conviction that conditions will soon warrant us in extending our organization to other Asiatic cities for the purpose of providing better transportation and financial facilities for the extension of American foreign trade."

NO NEW SCHOOL FOR MARBLETOWN

Complaint regarding the condition of the school house in District No. 3, of the town of Marbletown, and agitation for the erection of a new school building resulted in a meeting of the qualified voters of the district last Friday night.

Garrett N. Oliver was elected chairman of the meeting and the principal speaker of the evening was John Oliver. The latter's appearance at the meeting at first led to the belief that he intended to present a new school house to the district, but his speech dispelled the idea and he came out flat-footed against the proposition.

Mr. Oliver based his opposition to a new school entirely on sentimental grounds. He called attention to the fact that the present school building had been standing many years and a great many smart men not only had been educated there and had been employed as teachers, but that the place had been visited by men whose reputation extended from ocean to ocean.

Particularly Mr. Oliver recalled a visit to the old school which was paid by Judge Parker more than thirty years ago, and on that occasion Judge Parker had complimented the district on the excellence of its school building. It was an historic building, Judge Parker said, and he hoped to live to see it preserved for many years to come. Judge Parker had said that not one brick ought to be removed or one slab of siding torn off, and Mr. Oliver was of the opinion that the district could well afford to heed the advice then given by Judge Parker because the judge was a man of wide experience in worldly affairs and a smart man.

At this point someone interrupted Mr. Oliver's oratorical outburst to shout:

"He wasn't smart enough to be elected president."

Mr. Oliver rebuked the interrupter and the proposition to build a new school house was defeated by a Bryanesque vote of 16 to 1, only the interrupter voting in favor of the expenditure of money.

Another district meeting will be held shortly at which the question will be taken up again. Sidney Myers is trustee of the district.

A Six-Room Square House With Pergola. No. 128

The fortunate owner of this striking stucco and half-timbered house has solved the problem of where to go for the summer. The house proper occupies only 25x27.6 feet, leaving space for a generous lawn on all but the most diminutive of city lots. It is especially fitted for a corner. With its pergola covered with vines, its flower-boxes at the upper windows, with shrubbery judiciously planted on the lawn, it is a happy combination of the charms of the country with all the advantages the city has to offer.

This is one of those houses of pleasing aspect viewed from any angle. The front elevation discloses the handsome entrance porch with its gambrel hood, set off by the lozenge windows at the side. The group windows upstairs and down, the pergola with its massive stucco corner pillar and broad steps, the harmony and balance of the whole, and especially the novel touch of the slightly sloping lines of the first story, are here accentuated. Viewed from the corner, an entirely different aspect is in evidence. The French doors give a new note to the scene, while one appreciates that the pergola, while predominant, does not obscure the view from either living room or dining room to any appreciable extent.

Entrance from the front porch is into a spacious and well-lighted reception hall. Directly to the right are the stairs, set off by a massive balustrade. Here is also a large settle and back of this a cloak closet. The living room, 16.2x12.2 feet, is lighted by a group window in the front. Directly opposite this window is a fireplace with tiled hearth. This fireplace is located between the living room and the dining room, projecting slightly into each.

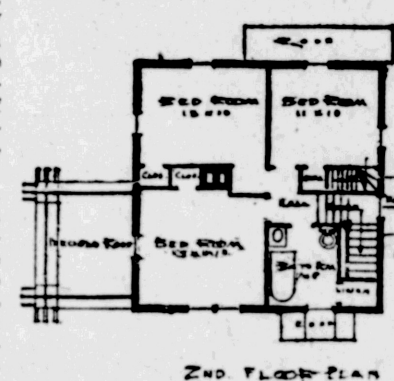

But the crowning glory of this house is the pergola, reached by French doors directly from the living room. This pergola is approximately the same size as the living room itself, being 11x16 feet. With the doors thrown open, the effect is indescribably pleasing, especially if plants and flowers on the lawn continue the vista into the great outdoors.

In the well-lighted dining room, 13x12 feet, advantage has been taken of the projection of the chimney to construct a china closet in the corner. Swinging doors communicate with a good-sized pantry, and thence directly to the kitchen, which has, in addition to the ordinary conveniences, an unusually large refrigerator or store closet. One door in the kitchen opens directly into the reception hall. Beside it is the doorway into the side entry to the basement stairs.

Three bedrooms, 13x11.10, 13x10 and 11x10 feet, together with the bathroom take up the second story. All the bedrooms have good closets, 4x6 feet, opening from the bathroom windows, and in particular the vines forming the pergola roof, are delightful hot weather accessories. All three bedroom doors are grouped within a step of the bathroom. Stairs lead to the space beneath the sloping roof, which is lighted by a dormer window and provides unlimited storage space, or a fairly good chamber may be finished there.

LIGHTNING RODS.

Why They End in a Sharp Point and Not in a Knob.

The reason a lightning rod has a sharp point is because a fine point offers no resistance to the discharge of electricity and in order that a cloud may be emptied of it noiselessly and harmlessly.

The degree of resistance is in proportion to the surface of the object. If the rod were surmounted by a knob, for instance, the discharge would be violent. But many a lightning rod has received an electrical discharge when the people in the building below were calmly unconscious of the fact. Non-corrosive metal is used for the point of the rod, as corrosion makes resistance. The difference between a point and a ball is shown in discharging a battery. The full charge from a large battery would be received quietly on a metal point, while a moderate charge from a small one would explode violently on a ball.

It is said that a full charge may be passed harmlessly through a person's body if received on the point of a needle, whereas the same charge received on a discharger with a ball or knob on the end would mean instant death.—London Telegraph.

Mistakes in Use of Words.

If use can make authority in the employment of words it is high time that certain etymologically misused phrases of our English tongue should be adopted into the family of orthodoxy. The word "necessity" is habitually used as the equivalent of "necessary." Instead of being its direct opposite, a man says: "I do not care for the luxuries of life if I have the necessities," when probably he has the "necessities" in clamorous abundance. Quite as common a blunder is the confusion between the words "expect" and "suspect." A man says: "There is a knock at the door. I expect that is the tax collector." He should say, "I have been expecting the tax collector and suspect that is he."—Boston Transcript.

Indians of Ecuador.

Perhaps nowhere on the globe do human beings so much resemble passive beasts of burden as in Ecuador. In fact, the Indians used to be designated in documents as "smaller beasts of burden" to distinguish them from pack animals. Loaded, they clamber up the steep streets as stolid as little gray burros. One sees many an urchin of seven years bearing on his back a load of bricks as heavy as he is. One woman, bent under a burden, carries a child at her breast. Another laden woman piles distaff and spindle as she creeps along. Here is a file of barefoot women bent under loads of earth or bricks escorted by a man with a whip. —Professor Edward Alsworth Ross' "South of Panama."

HENRY LA PIERRE

SURVIVED YPRES GAS FUMES.

Henry La Pierre.

Henry La Pierre of Chazy, N. Y., who served in the Thirtieth Battalion of Royal Highlanders of Canada, is back at his home, after surviving the gas fumes at the battle of Ypres, where the Germans turned loose, the latest war device, poisonous gases. La Pierre arrived in this country on the liner St. Paul, after being discharged from the British army at the request of Ambassador Page.

Practically the entire regiment, La Pierre said, was mowed down by the deadly gas bombs of the Germans. He said he crawled for 150 yards under the heavy clouds of yellow gas to the French trenches.

Those of his comrades who perished from the gas lingered for three or four days in dreadful agony before succumbing. Of his battalion of 1,000 men only 150 were left after ten minutes of fighting.

His sympathies being with the Allies, La Pierre ran away on August 22 to Montreal and joined the Canadian contingent. After training at Valcartier, near Quebec, his battalion was sent to England, and on February 14, started for France.

Well to Remember.

"Do only time you're justified in being a kicker," said Uncle Eben, "is when you're in swimmin'."

DAIRY WISDOM.

To have your cows milk long, milk them clean. Uneven eating and working make streaky butter. To feed economically, cows should be fed as individuals, not as a herd. Cream that is being ripened should be strained several times before it is ready for churning. The desired or standard color for butter is that natural color usually secured when fresh cows are grazing on fresh green pastures. Milk from healthy cows is practically free from bacteria when secreted. The problem of a sanitary milk supply, therefore, is to keep out all bacteria as far as is possible.

INFLUENCING FAT CONTENT OF MILK

[By Professor H. H. Kildee, Iowa Agricultural college.]

There is only one way that butter fat can be increased with certainty and in a large way. That is by obtaining a large and persistent flow of milk. However, it is evident that each of the following factors may have a slight influence upon the per cent of fat in the milk: Age, period of lactation, frequency of milking, feed and whether first or last drawn milk.

It is necessary in considering this matter to keep the question clearly stated. It is the per cent of fat in the milk and not the total amount of the production by the day, week, month or year that is under discussion. One cow with a low per cent of fat and large yield of milk may far exceed in total fat production other cows with a high per cent of fat and low production of milk.

The fact that cows produce a milk richer in butter fat toward the close of their lactation periods is well known. However, cows that are in high condition at calving time will produce for a time milk testing much higher than their average for the lactation period.

It is a common practice to milk cows on official or yearly record work three and sometimes four times per day. It is noticed that the great majority of the cows will give the highest per cent of fat following the shortest interval between milkings. Thus a slightly higher per cent of fat as well as a larger quantity of milk may be secured by these frequent milkings, but with the average cow under farm conditions not enough more to pay for the extra labor.

Many have contended that it is possible to increase the percentage of butter fat in milk by feeding certain feeds

The Ayrshire breed first became popular in New England and Canada and because of different care and conditions began to vary greatly from the Scottish type. The New England Ayrshire was short in the leg, heavy bodied and brown or cherry red in color, flecked with white, while the Scotch type was longer in the leg, straighter in the back and mostly white in color, with spots of various shades of red on the head and neck. The Scotch type is now favored in the show ring, and all breeders are endeavoring to conform to that standard. The bull shown is a pure bred Ayrshire.

high in fat content. However, experiments have proved that it is impossible to do so to any great extent or for a very long time. Certain oils added to the grain ration have resulted in a temporary increase, but the per cent of fat soon drops back to normal, even though the feeding is continued. The last milk is much richer than the fore milk. A trial showed the fore milk from a Jersey heifer to test 2 per cent fat while the strippings tested over 15 per cent. This shows the importance of proper milking and manipulating the udder.

Cows Susceptible to Bloat.

A pregnant cow is more susceptible to injury from irritating causes than a cow that has calved. She should be more carefully fed, and one should avoid giving her any feed likely to cause bloat. A trocar and cannula should be kept on hand to tap the paunch of a badly bloated cow where this is found necessary to save life. As a drench give two ounces of turpentine in a pint of raw linseed oil or an ounce of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a pint of water containing two ounces of granular hyposulphite of soda.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Sores on Teats.

Sores on teats is an infectious disease, and the germs are carried by the milker's hands or contracted from a contaminated floor or gutter. Instantly isolate and keep isolated until perfectly well any cow that has anything the matter with her udder. Soak affected teats twice daily in a hot saturated solution of boracic acid and touch the sores with tincture of iodine every other day.

Have a Care.

A New Jersey man who has been saying that his head is a block of wood has been sent to an asylum, so be careful what you say, even if your cold does make your head feel like a hubbard squash.—Boston Globe.

NO DEVELOPEMENTS IN PEACE CONFERENCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, June 22.—President Wilson made it clear today that the United States is not making any active effort to bring about peace in Europe, but that this government would do everything possible to promote the interests of peace when the opportunity offered itself. He asserted, in his talks with callers, that he thought this position of the U. S. was understood generally, and indicated that all peace offers of the administration would be made publicly.

The president added that he knew of no new developments regarding the proposed conference of neutrals.
He has not yet received the resolutions adopted by the league to enforce peace, and has not arrived at any decision regarding them.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The telephone call of Mrs. C. N.
Reed, society news reporter for The Freeman, has been changed to 1012-W.

The names of Mr. and Mrs. Holt Winfield of Ulster Park were omitted from the list of guests at the tenth reunion of the K. A. Class of 1905, which was held on Saturday evening at Wiltwyck Inn.

It is expected that some forty members of the P. V. P. Club of Ulster Academy will attend their annual banquet at the Eagle Hotel Wednesday evening. Following the banquet the young woman will enjoy a dance in the gymnasium of the new high school building.

The First German Sick and Aid Society held its annual business meeting Monday evening. There was a large attendance and several new members were initiated, the work being followed by a banquet.
The society will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in February, and preparations are being made for an elaborate observance of the event.

Showers and lowering skies had no effect upon the attendance at the Twaalfskill Club on Saturday afternoon, where there was a large gathering not only of golfers and tennis players, but members of the club and their out of town guests. Mrs.
Richard Washburn and Mrs. D. R.
Gale, assisted by Mrs. Frank Phelps and Miss Laura Washburn, were the hostesses.

Miss Isabella Gill of Gill street delightfully entertained at an informal dance given at her home in honor of Miss Edna Boyd of Mt.
Vernon, a student of Cornell. During the evening refreshments were served and the evening was particularly enjoyed by the guests, who were Miss Edna Boyd, Miss Florence Cordts, Miss Marjorie Little, Miss
Ruth Gill, Miss Helen Addis, Miss
Mildred Forst, Miss Hazel Toole,
Mrs. Walter N. Gill, Mrs. W. R.
Anderson, Earle Gill, John Cordts,
Seth Gill and David Finley, Charles Dana, Copeland Gates and Mr.
Cooper, students of Cornell.

Miss Phebe Cheshire gave a miscellaneous shower at her home in Saugerties Saturday afternoon in honor of Jennie M. Pearson. The decorations were roses and ferns.
About twenty friends were present.
A very appropriate song was sung for opening, after which games were played, the most enjoyable and interesting one being the one in which Miss Pearson was blindfolded and to her surprise showered with parcels wrapped in pink crepe paper and adorned with roses. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received. At about 5:30 dainty refreshments were served, after which all departed for their homes, wishing Miss Pearson a very happy future.

Hull-Whitaker.
Paul Hull of Malden and Miss Mary Elizabeth Whitaker of No. 10
Liberty street, this city, were quietly married on Sunday by the Rev.
C. H. Polhemus of Port Ewen.

Melchior-Leuffgen.
Arthur C. Melchior of No. 64
Linderman avenue and Miss Catherine Leuffgen of No. 160 Highland avenue, were quietly married in New York city on Monday by the Rev.
Joseph F. Rummel, former pastor of St. Peter's Church of this city.
The couple were attended by H. F.
Rach and Marie E. Leuffgen.

Davis-Oakley.
Miss Anna DeGraft Oakley of Krumville and LeRoy Davis of Olive Bridge were united in marriage on June 17 at the Wesleyan Methodist parsonage of Krumville by the Rev.
Walter M. Abare. They were attended by Florence M. Davis, sister of the groom, and Elson Oakley, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs.
Davis left by automobile for an extended tour through the Hudson valley and New England states. On their return they will reside in Olive Bridge.

Johnson-Brown.
Miss Iva Brown and Philetus
Johnson, both of this city, were married at the home of the groom, No.
31 Furnace street, on Sunday evening at nine o'clock, by the Rev.
George M. Cranston, pastor of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. They were attended by Miss Floretta Johnson, a sister of the groom. Miss Helen Williams played the wedding march. After a sumptuous spread the couple left for Washington, D.
C., and other places of interest in the south.

Shakespeare-Green.
A quiet home wedding took place
Saturday at 1 p. m. at the residence of George A. Green, 4 Merritt avenue, when his only daughter, Ethel Mae, was married to George Jason Shakespeare of Binghamton, formerly of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. N. Chase, Ph.
D., owing to a recent death in the family only a few intimate friends were invited. Immediately after the ceremony a sumptuous dinner was served and the bride and groom took the 2:40 Ulster and Delaware train for a week's bridal tour, after which Mrs. Shakespeare will reside for a time with her father in this city.
The groom is bookkeeper for the Standard Oil Company at Binghamton, and the bride was for several years in the office of the Ulster and Delaware railroad in this city, where she is well known and where many friends extend their congratulations.

Storm-Schumann.
A pretty wedding took place this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Evangelical Lutheran Church in the Redeemer when Miss Clara Belle Schumann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
George P. Schumann of Eddyville, and Roy Storm of Hudson were married. The bride was becomingly attired in a robe of white lace and carried white carnations. She was attended by Miss Ruth Tooker of Eddyville, who was groomed in pink and carried pink carnations. The best man was Frederick Irving Schur-mann, brother of the bride. Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Storm went to the bride's home where a wedding reception was held and then the happy couple left for a trip to New York. On Wednesday they will be given an elaborate reception in New York at the home of the bride's sister. The bride has a host of friends and relatives in this city who wish her a long and happily wedded life. After an extended honeymoon trip they will reside in Hudson.

Ulster Alumni Reunion.
All arrangements for the annual reunion of old Ulster's graduates are complete. From the number of responses received, the attendance will be a record one, and the occasion a fitting climax to the academy's activities. A regular banquet will be served, and ample provision has been made for those who, though they did not reply to the invitations yet intend to be present.

The program will be composed of a piano solo by Miss Ethel Johnston, a reading by Miss Mabel Bal-den, and a vocal selection by Copeland Gates.

The toast list for the banquet contains the names of Mayor Palmer Candell, Harry H. Fleming,
Lieutenant Raymond Marsh, Miss
Margaret McCullough, Miss Ethel Mauterstock, Miss E. L. Turner, Recorder Lang and Chris Flanagan.
After the banquet there will be dancing as long as the guests desire.

Excellent "Pupils' Recital."

The recital given by the piano pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Dodge, at their charming studio on Green street on Saturday afternoon, was thoroughly enjoyable, each pupil playing with marked excellence. Mrs.
Dodge's pupils were the first on the program, which was opened by Margaret Healy, who played "The Co-quette" and "The Tally-ho," by Gaynor. While both numbers were well given, the second was especially good and both were played from memory.
In fact, the entire program for the whole afternoon was given without a piece of music being placed upon the piano.

Gertrude Walsh next played two pretty slumber songs by Gaynor,
"Rock-a-bye-Baby" and "Sleep Song"
and she played both very sweetly.
Jensen's "Edin Dance" as remarkably well rendered by Margaret Messinger, was a much longer and more difficult number, requiring some nice shading and pedal work. These requirements were well met by the young pianist.

Louise Freer's two selections were Martin's "Butterfly Waltz" and Cochran's "Wake Robin," and while both were given an excellent rendition, the crispness of the latter number was noticeably good.

Helen Dwyer gave a fine interpretation of DeKoven's "April Birds," her technique also being fine.

In the "Revel of the Wood-Nymphs," by Barbour, Little Miss Katharine Kearney, showed much artistic musical ability, entering into the spirit of the composition thoroughly and playing admirably.

The Mendelssohn, "Song Without Words, No. 4" was played with the sweet seriousness and fineness that it demands by Miss Elizabeth Hall.

Miss Elsie Stern gave a dainty and pleasing presentation of Kohler's
"Flying Leaves."

A spirited number was Chamberlain's "Butterfly Waltz," admirably played by Miss Ruth Dodge.

Quite different in style, but played with marked grace, was the "Air de Ballet," by Rogers, played by Miss Dorothy Demgen.

The most ambitious numbers on the program were the Nocturne in F
minor and the Mazurka in A minor, by Chopin, played with most exceptional musicianship, excellence of phrasing and interpretation by Miss Ruby Markson.

Miss Mary Hasbrouck played the Meyer-Helmud "Nocturne," a very romantic composition, with much feeling and grace of execution.

Miss Gertrude Trueman's selection was one of those treacherous "Tarantelle," by Mills, and Miss Trueman showed considerable skill in her rendition of this difficult number.
The fine program was brought to its close by Harry Elmonoff, who gave a brilliant, and artistic rendition of Godard's "Valse Chromatique," a work calling for unusual technical skill.

Hard Water.
Do you realize how hard water is when a boat sails through it at full speed? Water passing at fifty miles an hour is not the limpid liquid we are accustomed to bathe in. If you put your arm overboard from a hydro-plane running fifty miles an hour and strike a wave crest the probability is that you will break your arm or wrist, because at that speed the water has not time to give or even to change shape, and striking it is like striking so much metal.

If a swordsman should enter one of the great hydraulic quarries, where a stream of water under enormous head is used to wash down hillsides, and attempt to cut into one of those streams his sword would fly in pieces without being able to penetrate the water. The stream is like a bar of iron.

Quaker Postage Rates.
The city of Christobal, in the canal zone, is separated from the city of Colon, in the republic of Panama, by a street only. One side of the street is in one city, the other side in the other city. A boy or girl living in Christobal can for 2 cents send a letter all the way to New York, or, farther yet, to San Francisco. Or if he wants to send it a long, long way a two-cent stamp will carry a letter from Christobal to Alaska or Hawaii or Guam or even halfway around the world to the Philippine Islands. But suppose that boy or girl wants to send a letter across the street to some friend in Colon.
How much postage must he use?
Why, 5 cents, of course! It doesn't seem quite right, does it?—St. Nicholas.

For the Children

Willie Chiels, Holder
of an Envious Position.

When can you find a boy who does not envy Willie Chiels of New York city? Perhaps there are a few, but they are very few, and they hold positions similar to that occupied by Willie.
"Babe" Chiels, as he is familiarly known, is mascot of the New York American baseball club. Imagine a boy being a member of a professional baseball club! Think of the pleasure of being dressed in a regulation uniform and empowered to have charge of the bats; then the joy of knowing the heroes of the diamond personally and being received as and considered one of themselves. All this grandeur and good luck have come to "Babe" Chiels, the official mascot of the Yankees. It is fine to be a stage driver, a railroad brakeman or deckhand on a steamboat, but none of these positions compare in honor with the mascot of a big league baseball club. The man besides Willie is Manager Donovan of the New York Americans.

The First Gem.

The pearl is the one gem that comes to man perfect from the hand of nature, and to this its great antiquity as a gem is largely due. Precious stones whose beauty and brilliancy depend on polishing and cutting would naturally be discovered and utilized later.

The discovery of the diamond, for instance, probably dates within historic times. Though known earlier, it was not generally included among the gem treasures of royalty even as late as the seventh century.

It is quite probable that the pearl was the first gem known and treasured by prehistoric man since the search for food must have been the first occupation of the earliest of the race, and the shining pearl would thus have been discovered in river mussels if not in marine oysters. Certain it is that the Old Testament and the ancient written histories allude to pearls and that remoter evidence is found in the tombs and excavated cities of still earlier eras. The Egyptians, Babylonians and Assyrians held the pearl in an esteem verging on reverence.

The Witty Father.

A family, including a young man just home from college, was seated at the dinner table, on which were two nice roasted chickens, one at each end.
The father, a practical man of the world, asked his son if he was learning at college.

"Yes, indeed," the son replied. "Why,
I can make two out of three."

"Nonsense, my boy. It can't be done."

"But, father, I can prove it. For instance, the chickens. This is one chicken at your end of the table."

"Yes," said the father.

"And that is two at mother's end."

"Well?" said the father.

"Well, two and one are three."

CONVENTION HONORS G. A. R.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 22.—The constitutional convention today took cognizance of the presence in this city of the veterans of the G. A. R. Delegate Franchot moved that the convention take suitable action to recognize the presence of the survivors of the war. He suggested that a committee be named to devise the form of recognition.

Leader Wickham suggested the rules committee decide and report tomorrow morning. Delegate Whipple voted against the resolution, he desiring that it go to the military or a special committee.

But one proposal was put in today as a committee report. It prohibits the legislature from abolishing the office of coroner and was submitted by the committee on town and counties at the request of Dr. Frank S. Senior of Kings. Should this be ratified it would nullify the action of the legislature in abolishing the office of coroner.

FRENCH CLAIM SLIGHT GAINS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, June 22.—The text of the official communiqué follows:

"Dunkirk was bombarded last night by the Germans using long range guns. Fourteen shells fell upon the city and several civilians were killed.

"Southwest of St. Georges, Belgium, the Belgians captured a German trench. All the defenders that were not killed were captured.

"In the section north of Arras the enemy after a bombardment of great intensity attacked at several points, but was repulsed, except southeast of Souchez, where he succeeded in gaining a foothold in our trenches.

"Southeast of Souchez the Germans delivered a night attack and captured a section of a trench.

"East of the farm of Chennevières we have extended our gains 300 metres northwest of the crest, east of Reillon.

"We have occupied the hills south of Les Removais and repulsed German attacks at Leintrey and Parroy, taking prisoners. Both to the north and south of Metzeral we have advanced, gaining new ground. We have occupied Andassawass, taking prisoners and three machine guns."

CONLON BOY HAS SKULL FRACTURED

The six-year-old son of Mrs. Jennie Conlon of No. 14 Ravine street, was run down by a boy riding a bicycle at the corner of Ravine and Abeel streets this noon and sustained a fractured skull. The young lad was moved to the Benedictine Sanitarium where Drs. Robinson and Eastman were forced to operate removing a piece of the bone from the lad's skull. No serious results are expected to follow the operation. It was impossible to learn the name of the boy who rode the bicycle which ran the Conlon boy down. Mrs. Conlon had her collar bone broken last winter on Hunter street when she was hit by a sleigh coasting down the hill.

LOCAL BASEBALL DOINGS.

Games Played or to be Played by the Home Teams.

On Sunday at Schoentag's grounds the Wilbur Feds defeated the Hennehan A. C. in a fast game by the score of 13 to 7. Up to the seventh inning the Hennehan team led with the score 3 to 0, when the Feds got a batting rally and scored 7 runs. In the eighth inning they scored 6 more runs, making a total of 13 runs and winning the game. The Hennehan team had three pitchers in the box in a vain effort to stop the rally of the Feds but to no avail as the Feds had gained their batting eye and could not be stopped. Cullen pitched an excellent game for the Feds and was admirably supported behind the bat by Bush. The entire team played a good steady game.

THREE INQUISITIVE SCOTS.

And How They Happened to Originate the Jute Industry.

James Logie, who is supposed to know more about jute than any one else in America, tells in a very interesting way how jute came to be known to Europe and the west:

"In 1840, on a Saturday afternoon, three Dundee flax spinners were walking to their beautiful residences in Broughty Ferry, about four miles east of Dundee, on the banks of the Tay, and as usual strolled along the docks. At that time there were several Clipper line sailing vessels trading with Dundee in Indian products, principally grain, linseed, etc., and on this particular Saturday one of these vessels was discharging her miscellaneous cargo, and these canny Scots observed a fibre in some quantity on the dock and made inquiry as to what it was.

"They were told it was some Indian product that had been obtained in Bengal, and was suitable for the dunnage of ships. They examined the fibre a little more carefully and all thought it would be possible to spin the fibre on their flax machinery. The result was that Monday morning they made a bee line for the agents of the ship and asked what they were going to do with this waste material.

"They got the reply, 'We propose dumping it into the river,' and when they expressed a wish to experiment with it they were told they could cart it away from the dock and were welcome to it if they paid the cartage. Thus the jute industry started—for the fibre turned out to be nothing less than what we know commercially today as 'jute.'—Exchange.

SUBMARINE TACTICS.

Locating the Enemy, Getting the Range and Making an Attack.

How does a submarine attack? How does it locate the vessel it wishes to torpedo and how does it proceed about the business of sending such vessel to the bottom? Here is the way the commander of Uncle Sam's submarine flotilla tells it:

"A submarine will come to the surface at 5,000 or 6,000 yards from the vessel it is attacking—far enough so the enemy is not supposed to see the periscope. It stays up long enough to get the enemy's course, then goes down and sets its course to intercept the enemy's ship.

"The vessel must be coming more or less toward the submarine, otherwise the submarine, with its low submerged speed, cannot catch it.

"The officers of the submarine will know the revolutions of the approaching ship and will use the gyrocompass with which to work out its exact position. They will know just when to come up to be within range.

"When the submarine comes up it will show the periscope as little as possible, take quick aim and fire its first torpedo. If it wants to remain there out of curiosity to see the effect it can. But if it does not it goes right down again.

"It stays a short time under water, turns the cap bringing new torpedoes up into the tubes and then comes up for a second shot if necessary."—Pittsburgh Press.

COUNSEL AND CLIENT.

A Lawyer's Right to Defend a Prisoner He Knows to Be Guilty.

Ought an advocate to defend a prisoner whom he believes to be guilty? Mr. Justice Darling in a case in which a solicitor was the plaintiff made some observations on this familiar problem which ought not to go unrecorded. He protested, says the London Globe, against the notion that a lawyer, whether barrister or solicitor, was under an obligation to cease to conduct a case which he realizes to be bad.

"If an advocate in the course of a trial for murder comes to recognize that his client is guilty is he," asked the learned judge, "to say to the court, 'Hang my client?'" Judges have seldom asked about the ethics of advocacy in open court. It was, however, in a considered judgment in the court of exchequer that Baron Bramwell made his famous contribution to the discussion.

"A man's rights," said the baron, "are to be determined by the court, not by his advocate or counsel. It is for want of remembering this that foolish people object to lawyers that they will advocate a case against their own opinions. A client is entitled to say to his counsel: 'I want your advocacy, not your judgment. I prefer that of the court.'" Mr. Justice Darling, in the jargon of the courts, concurs.

Laymen have usually been readier than lawyers to discuss the ethics of advocacy. "What do you think of supporting a cause you know to be bad?" Everybody knows Dr. Johnson's reply when Boswell asked him this question. "Sir, you do not know it to be good or bad till the judge determines it."

Less generally known is Sydney Smith's contribution to the discussion. "Justice is found experimentally to be most effectually promoted by the opposite efforts of practiced and ingenious men presenting to the selection of an impartial judge the best arguments for the establishment or explanation of truth. It becomes, then, under such an arrangement the decided duty of an advocate to use all the arguments in his power to defend the cause he has adopted and to leave the effects of those arguments to the judgment of others." This was said in an assize sermon the famous wit preached at York in 1824.

DARING BELLE BOYD.

Brilliant and Romantic Career of the Famous War Spy.

Stonewall Jackson's valley campaign was one of the great deeds of history. Not since Napoleon's time have men been so dazzled as they were by that great exploit of his. Yet Stonewall might have gone down the valley in defeat had it not been for a little college girl named Belle Boyd.

The Union general, Shields, was quartered at Miss Boyd's house. He held a council of war there. Miss Boyd bored a hole in the floor of her chamber, which was over Shields' room, and lay there with her ear to it throughout the night. The next morning Stonewall Jackson was in full possession of the plans for a great battle and was able to defeat the Union army.

She kept up her valiant work for the Confederates until the Union officers began to suspect her, and Jackson ordered her to move from her Shenandoah home to Winchester. She had been arrested by the federals and had flitted her way to liberty, for she was a pretty girl despite the libelous photographs of her. In Winchester Jackson conferred upon her a commission as captain in the Confederate army. By this time the whole north had become aware of the services she was rendering the Confederacy, and every officer and private was on the alert to get her. Yet she escaped until 1864, when she was caught on a blockade runner. Her captor lost his heart to her, deserted the navy and married her, and the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII, attended the wedding.—New York Times.

POULTRY

PEN THE HENS TO GET EGGS

Fowls Should Be Confined From Time They Reach Maturity Until Marketed as Poultry.

(By GEORGE H. FELLARD.)

As a cold-blooded business proposition, probably no plan is better than that of keeping the hens shut in all the time. They should be confined from the time they reach maturity until marketed as poultry, and fed as stout a ration as they will stand without going wrong.

Aside from sentiment and pleasure in their appearance, this is the money-making way for villagers and suburbanites, who have limited yard room and need to keep their premises free from litter and soiling that are otherwise nearly inseparable from poultry keeping.

The fowls do not look so well as when on range—their plumage gets dull and they are less lively, but they will shell out the eggs and keep on shelling them out with less labor and less expense than under any other system, unless it is the colony system with free range.

Even then it is doubtful if the same number can be more easily cared for, of the ultimate profit will be greater.

In keeping the hens on this plan, they should be separated into flocks of 25 to 35 and allowed from four to six square feet per bird.

Dry feeding entails the least work and, therefore, brings the best profit, as the egg yield is generally better than where fed on the one-meal-at-a-time and the "chick lunch" systems.

If the feed is properly proportioned and the supply is always ample, there will be no trouble in getting eggs, and lots of them if the hens are in good health.

Trap Nests Show Poor Layers.

We doubt if there is so much difference in the average egg production of hens as is sometimes fancied.

With good feeding—which means the right kind as well as quantities—most hens will make good. Some will do better than others, but so far it seems impracticable to select only the best in this case.

The time taken in selection, and the fact that the hen should go at it a year old, makes the labor of selection, together with the uncertainty of reproduction, more expensive than keeping the usual proportion of poor layers.

Trap-nesting is the only positive way of deciding the question, and that is a way which is impractical where large numbers are kept.

Kept housed all the time, the hens are subject to the most arbitrary feeding rules and experience is showing that they will produce as many, or more, eggs as when on range.

Occasionally a hen will get to feather pulling or egg eating. In such cases a run of a few days outside will usually reverse the habit; if not, dark nests or a wax will.

GIVING OIL FOR INDIGESTION

Green or Immature Corn Is Always Sure to Cause Trouble—Mild Purgative Is Recommended.

Nearly two-thirds of the deaths of turkeys are caused by indigestion. Green or immature corn is always sure to cause indigestion and bowel trouble, and birds so afflicted droop around, are "off their feed," and if relief is not given them, die in a few days.

Having lost some turkeys from indigestion, we resolved to experiment a little. Instead of giving a violent purgative as recommended by some poultrymen, we gave a mild one, namely: Raw linseed oil in tablespoonful doses. We have never known this remedy to fail, says a writer in an exchange. As soon as a turkey looks dejected and "droopy" we give it a dose and next day it is chipper and spry as ever. Poults should be given teaspoonful doses of the oil.

GIANTS NOT PENNANT-CONTENDING TEAM

(By FRANK G. MENKE.)

The Giants are a 50 to 1 shot for the 1915 pennant—just that and nothing more. Nothing but a miracle can win for them now.

The Giants have just one real pitcher—Tressau. And no ball club ever won a pennant with less than three top-notch pitchers. Mathewson is about through. The brain of the "old master" is as crafty as of yore, but the old arm refuses to obey the dictates of that brain. And the opposition has batted the feeble shoots and slants to all portions of the lot on practically every start Matty has made this year.

Marquard is erratic. One day he pitches a great game; the next day he performs like a bush leaguer. Peritt was a winning twirler with the Cardinals, but he hasn't touched the .500 mark with the Giants. Stroud is showing up nicely but he can't be depended upon to win two-thirds of his games. Schupp and Schauer haven't shown anything.

And these men constitute the Giants' defense; Tressau, a marvelous pitcher, the fast-slipping Matty, the erratic Marquard, the in-and-out Peritt and the unreliable Stroud, Schupp and Schauer.

Offensively the Giants do not show up much better. On some days they look like the greatest outfit of sluggers in existence; on others they act like a bunch of blind men. They hit in streaks; and no streak-hitting club ever won the pennant.

Some wonderfully optimistic Giant rooters still see a chance for the pennant. They point to the work of the Braves last year. They argue that the Giants can do what the Braves did. But how different is the situation! Last year the Braves had no one to beat out but the Giants. The New York outfit overshadowed every other club in the league up to July 4th. Every other club was of the second division order. But this year there are at least four clubs that seem as powerful now as the Giants did in 1914.

The Cubs, Phillies, Braves and Pirates—and even the Brooklyn Dodgers—can give the Giants a mighty battle. No team other than the Reds will stack up as a pie counter proposition for the 1915 Giants, because even the Cardinals are dangerous. The Giants in an attempt to climb from the bottom to the top of the National league heap would find the climbing at least 30 per cent harder than the Braves did last year. And, furthermore, the Giants haven't the power that the Braves had. The Braves were aided and abetted in their achievement by the most remarkable pitching feats the baseball world has ever known. Three twirlers—James, Rudolph and Tyler—pitched in rotation week after week and pitched as no trio of men has ever pitched before.

McGraw hasn't any trio to work as Stallings had. He hasn't got a Maraville nor an Evers. His men aren't imbued with the same fighting spirit as were Stallings' men and, most important of all, he hasn't got the Stallings' luck.

Good playing and marvelous pitching were mighty factors, but the mightiest of all was luck. A dozen times the "breaks" saved the Braves from defeat and gave them victory. A pennant-contending team must be well rounded—and the Giants of 1915 are not. Their pitching department is the main weakness but the catching department is not anything that should be envied. The team as a whole is prone to bobbing in pinches.

"Bone" plays are frequent, and, worst of all, a hard luck jinx has been pursuing the McGraw outfit since the season began. And it's still pursuing. But the Giants won't finish in the cellar. They probably will climb out of the rut soon and leap over frames of the Reds, Cardinals and Dodgers. They may go a notch or two further, depending very largely upon what the Cubs, Phillies, Braves and Pirates do from now on. But they won't finish first unless all the players on the other clubs become afflicted with beriberi, spavin, sea-sickness and hokuspokus.

VERY HOPEFUL OF JOE WOOD

Manager Carrigan Figures Red Sox Will Soon Be in Lead for Pennant in American League.

Manager Carrigan figures that his Red Sox will be in the lead soon and will stay there until the season closes. "Joe Wood never was in better shape at this time of the year," says Carrigan. "He has a lot on his fast ball and his control is better than I thought."

Joe Wood.

It would be when I considered his long absence from the box. All the rest of our pitchers are in the best of shape, and we are going to make a lot of trouble for the other teams. Now if Hooper and Speaker will get hitting, we should keep on winning."

HE WON HIS BET

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

I was a reader for a prominent magazine. Perhaps I should explain those who are not familiar with the work that a reader is one who reads manuscripts of unknown authors. A manuscript is brought to the editor, who sits at a mahogany desk and listens with apparent interest to a long account of the me of the work submitted, smiles benignly on the author and as soon as he goes tosses the manuscript to the writer without a word.

The magazine I was with being women, most of the readers were women, I being one of the women.

At one time when the editor ill those who insisted on seeing editor were referred to me. One of those who left a manuscript with me was a man who seemed to me to be a successful writer or should be a writer at all. But successful writers were not used to asking us to publish their works; we asked them to do us the honor to permit us to publish them. I was certainly impressed with Mr. Horatio Beardsley—the name on the title page of his story—promised him that I would give story a careful reading.

I did most of my work at home; took Mr. Beardsley's story, called "A Fool For His Pains," there to read. But a great many manuscripts were crowding upon us at the time, and were especially successful in getting recognized literary lights in the world to give us their works. The consequence was that I omitted to read "A Fool For His Pains" for some time.

One day I looked in my closet for the manuscript, where I had left it and did not find it there. I asked my mother what had become of it and she told me that she had burned it as a memento of a pastime of her youth. The manuscript was in a pasteboard box, and it was apparent to me that it had gone up in smoke.

I was terror-stricken. If through carelessness a manuscript committed to my care were destroyed and there was no other copy in existence I would not only suffer a terrible mortification but would lose my position, on which I was dependent for a living for my mother and myself.

When I went again to the office the magazine a letter from Mr. Beardsley was handed me, stating that he had made arrangements for the publication of "A Fool For His Pains" and asking them to return the manuscript. I said nothing at the office about its destruction, for I had sufficiently recovered from the shock to make up my mind what to do or to do in the matter. I went home and tried to think out a way by which I might escape myself from the loss of my position, though there was no possible way of escaping the mortification to which I would be subjected.

What I decided upon was this: I wrote a note to Mr. Beardsley, confessing that his manuscript had been burned and asking him if he had any other copy and begging him for a present to say nothing about the matter. My note brought him to see at my home, and it was plain that he was much chagrined at the loss of his manuscript. I told him I could raise $50, which I knew was more than any author unknown to the public could get for a story of the same length. The one he had submitted. He looked up at me with a curious expression when I said this, but made no reply.

He left me, saying that he would think over what was best to do, but in a meanwhile I need give myself no uneasiness concerning it. This was very good of him, and I felt very grateful.

A few days later I received a note from him saying that he had decided to rewrite the lost story. Work he had over a second time was always better than his first effort. If I could spare the time to become his amanuensis for the work he would not only excuse me for the destruction of the original manuscript, but if he received a high price for the second draft than he had been offered for the first he would divide the excess with me.

I was only too glad to escape with this penalty and accepted the proposition except as to any pecuniary interest in what he received for his story. I gave him a couple of hours over working day for a month, at the end of which time the story was finished. In the course of another week I received a note from the author stating a check for $250, which he said was my share of the excess over what he had been offered for the first draft of his story. And what was my astonishment to see in his signature the name of one of the most gifted writers before the public.

He had made a bet with a friend that he would submit a story to our magazine under an assumed name and nothing would come of it. Something more than he expected

If This is Your Birthday
JUNE 22

Cancer is the sign of governing this birthdate and the moon is the governing planet. The person born today will have talent in many directions, but must learn spiritual development and self-reliance. Failure comes to this person because there has not been tenacity of purpose and because they have been too sensitive personally.

They must look away from self and press forward with no regret for past mistakes. Sometimes people of this birthdate go to the most absurd extremes.

Because of the influence of the governing planet, the moon, we find here a love for travel, a desire to visit strange and new places and a love for nature in all its forms. The birthstone is a black onyx.

The Freeman Want Ads will advertise to advantage stores, automobiles and farm properties.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 22.—All signs point to some real battles on Friday, June 25, when the Yale and Harvard crews meet on the River Thames at New London.

The pre-regatta betting favors the Crimson outfit in the eight oared varsity battle—but the margin is small. The probable odds on race day will be 10 to 9 on Harvard, although a shower of Yale backing may force it to even money.

The Harvard varsity crew of 1915 looks like one of the very best that ever pulled a boat under the Crimson standard. It certainly looks 33 per cent better than the 1914 crew that was beaten by an eyelash by Yale last year.

Yale, too, has a crew infinitely better than last year. Certainly its improvement, on paper, shows as high in percentage as that of Harvard. And the crew that Yale has boated in the varsity shell this year looks up as one of the smoothest working that Yale has had in all the years of its rowing history.

On form so far there is little to choose between the two crews. Yale furnished the biggest rowing surprise of many years when it won the triangular regatta on May 15th. Yale was regarded as a rank outsider. Princeton was the favorite, with Cornell second choice. But the Yale crew sculled across the finish line a comparatively easy winner.

The Yale victory gave it the "edge" over Harvard, but one week later—May 22nd—Harvard ground off that edge by defeating Cornell—and doing it decisively.

And these two crews that beat the "unbeatable" Cornell are the crews that will furnish an aquatic treat for the thousands of rowing enthusiasts who will journey to New London on Friday to watch the forty-ninth Yale-Harvard river battle.

It ought to be a beautiful race to watch, this eight oared varsity affair, and one that won't be decided until the crews shoot up their stroke the human limit and whizz along for the last half mile to the goal.

Six of the men who are slated to pull for Harvard in the varsity eight are veterans of the crew that went to England last year and surprised the rowing world by its victory in the big Henley regatta. Those six men are: H. A. Murray, of New York (Captain and bow oar); B. Harwood (No. 4) of Newton, Mass.; K. B. G. Parson, (No. 6) of Providence, R. I.; J. W. Mittendorf (No. 5) of Baltimore; D. P. Morgan (No. 2) of New York and C. C. Lund, of Boston, the wonderful stroke oarsman. The other two men were in the 1914 freshman crew. They are: I. E. Stebbins (No. 3) of New York and H. B. Cabot, Jr. (No. 7) of Brookline, Mass.

The thole pin is the only thing in the Yale boat this year to remind one of the English stroke which was used by Yale in 1912 with such disastrous results. In 1914 the straight English stroke was abolished and a modified English stroke was used, but this year Coach Nickalls has gone a step further and schooled his men in the straight American stroke.

The new stroke, with the use of the thole pins, makes the men reach out a bit farther than they would without these pins, but the longer sweep seems to have given the Yale boat greater power without any noticeable exertion.

There promises to be a battle royal in the other two races that are on the regatta program—the eight oared second varsity and the eight oared freshmen. Both colleges have boated some great oarsmen in their younger crews and the races promise to be thrillers from start to finish.

K. A. Alumni Reception.

All preparations for the coming reception, banquet and dance which will be the final reunion of Kingston Academy alumni, are nearing completion and the promise is that the event will be remarkably well attended, especially by graduates from distant points. The Hon. Charles Walton will act as toastmaster, and men of note will be the speakers. The committee on decorations will make old K. A. resplendent with flowers, pennants and flags. Muller's orchestra will furnish music worthy of the entire occasion. The desks are being taken out of the rooms that will be used for the reception, banquet and dance, and all will be in readiness for a reunion that shall be both an inspiration and a matter of long to be remembered pleasure to all who attend.

John Burroughs Recovering.

Judge Clearwater, who spent Monday afternoon with John Burroughs, says that Mr. Burroughs has practically recovered from his recent attack of illness, and is now out of doors. He is in good spirits and expects to go to Woodchuck Lodge at Roxbury next week, proposing to spend the summer at that place.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, June 22.—A pleasant outing was enjoyed by a number of the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church on Wednesday, June 16, who went to Brown's Station and gave Mrs. Henry Winchell a surprise.

Eph. Weeks, driving his fine team, took Mrs. Abner Winne, Mrs. Charles Mac Donough, Mrs. George Giles, Mrs. George Gulick, Mrs. James Giles and Mrs. Buzwell in his big three seated wagon and Mrs. Ennist and Mrs. Dumont went with J. D. Ennist in his fine new auto. Arriving at their destination the ladies were gratified in spying Mrs. Winchell in her garden making a vigorous campaign on the weeds. Although taken completely by surprise Mrs. Winchell welcomed her guests with a smiling face and a "glad hand," and turned over to them the full possession of the house. From various boxes and packages a variety of good things were produced, and an abundant luncheon was soon set out on the broad vine covered porch to which everyone did ample justice. During the afternoon a walk around the aerating basin of the reservoir and through the now fast disappearing camp was taken and a pleasant call made on Mrs. Neal Windrum. Mr. Windrum then conducted the party to the McClellan monument and up the 65 feet of stairway to the top from which an extensive and most beautiful view of the reservoir and the surrounding country is obtained. Reluctantly we retrace our steps along the overflow channel across the bridge, past the gate chamber to the bugalow again and find our turn to be surprised has come for we cannot realize that it is 4 o'clock and that our drivers are waiting to take us back to our respective homes.

With many invitations from Mrs. Winchell to repeat the visit we depart with one regret only—the time has been too short, and with the firm conviction also that Mr. Winchell knows how to keep a secret.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will hold a festival on the 4th of July on the church grounds during the afternoon and evening. A fine supper will be served from 5 to 8 p. m. and automobile parties or those desiring lunch will be served with sandwiches, cake, coffee, etc., at any time after 3 o'clock. Lemonade, ice cream, etc., will also be on sale. All come and celebrate a safe and sane Fourth.
